Canadian Arms Stand On Guard Premier States

Canadian Arms Stand On Guard Premier States

By R. BLACKBURN
KINGSTON, Oct. 18. (CP)—No foreign power could enter Canada, either from the Orient or from Europe, without encountering the force of Canadian arms, Prime Minister Mackenzie King declared in an address here Friday night.

Speaking at a civic banquet to Queen's University which is celebrating its 100th anniversary, Mr. King, recalled the pledge of aid to Canada given by President Roosevelt when he received a degree from Queen's Aug. 18, 1938.

The following day, Mr. King recalled, he had played in an address before the president's pledge of aid if Canada were attacked, placed upon Canada the responsibility of so protecting herself that the United States would not be open to an invasion of the Dominion.

PROTECTING CONTINENT
Mr. King said he did not think realize there would be soon be an opportunity to point out how well that obligation had been adopted.
"Today no foreign power, whether coming from the Orient or from Europe, could enter Canada without encountering the armed forces of this country."

Canadian, he said, were not only protecting the American continent, but also the British Empire, and with an expeditionary force closer to the enemy than Great Britain, and with outposts at strategic points in the Atlantic.

Mr. King made a stirring plea to the educational institutions to adhere to the principles of freedom and humanity, and to aid in preventing the substitution of force for the principles of democracy in government.

He asked for support from the universities for the government's war effort.

Pepper Urges U.S. Ships Sail To War Ports

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18. (AP)—The decisive House of Representatives approval of legislation to arm United States merchant ships prompted Senator Claude Pepper (Dem., Fla.) today to ask the senate to go even farther and wipe out the Neutrality Act's ban against American merchantmen travelling to belligerent ports.

A member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Pepper said that the heavy house majority for arming the ships indicated the temper of the country and congress.

Pepper, who has been in the forefront of all-out measures against Germany, said he would offer his amendments to broaden terms of the ship arming legislation to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The committee is scheduled to deal about hearings Monday.

TOKYO, Oct. 18. (AP)—Lt.-Gen. Eiki Tojo, premier of Japan's new predominantly military government, today declared Japan will continue her efforts to create a prosperity sphere in East Asia and called upon the empire for full cooperation and aid.

Bader Reveals Plane Collided With Nazi
LONDON, Oct. 18. (CP)—Wing Cmdr. Douglas Bader, the R.A.F.'s legless ace, has written his wife from a German prison camp that a chance collision with a Messerschmitt 109 forced him to take to his parachute over France when he was captured in August.

One of Bader's artificial legs was broken in the descent, and his fellow fliers later dropped him a new one by parachute.
Bader wrote his wife that he sent an attacking Messerschmitt down in flames, and in pulling up after the attack collided with another of the German fighters. The German crashed and Bader bailed out, Bader wrote.

The air ministry has added two more to the list of official secret of planes destroyed. The total now is 23, one plane being shared with another pilot.

U.S. Entry Into War Is Seen Possible

U.S. Entry Into War Is Seen Possible

By WILLIAM E. DOWNS
LONDON, Oct. 18. (BUP)—Political and diplomatic charters predicted today that the next few days would tell whether the new Japanese government intends to challenge Britain and the United States and informed sources cautiously added that the next few days might even bring the immediate entry of the United States into the war.

Some quarters expressed the hope that Japan would make a definite move to help her Axis partners, on Britain and possibly the United States, could have a showdown in the Pacific.

It was pointed out that the establishment of security against the Japanese in the Far East would require troops and ships for action in Europe.

Informed sources said the United States and Britain were working together closely in the Pacific. They pointed out that Prime Minister Winston Churchill said on Aug. 24, that in the event of a breakdown of Japanese-American negotiations, "we of course, range ourselves unhesitatingly on the side of the United States."

Factors for, against
Factors which would tend to decide Japan from action, were said:
1—She still has China on her hands.
2—Her stocks of war supplies are limited, and the possibilities of getting more are precarious.
3—The Japanese navy might be forced to fight the American, British, and Dutch fleets in the Pacific.

4—Japan is extremely vulnerable to air attack.
5—She is isolated from her Axis partners.
6—The Japanese situation in Russia is precarious.
7—Japan's urgent need for effective action against the American-British-Chinese-Dutch economic front.
8—The necessity of the United States delivering maximum through the war and other war measures.

Social Credit Caucus Opposed To Increase Bond Interest Rates

Social Credit Caucus Opposed To Increase Bond Interest Rates

Opposition to the principle of any upward adjustment of interest rates in any refunding plan which may be undertaken by the government, was expressed in a resolution passed by the Social Credit members of the legislature caucus, which adjourned early Friday after sitting for two days.

The caucus echoed its objection in the following resolution: "Whereas we believe that our people are already being taxed to the full extent of their ability to pay and

"Whereas any increase in debt charges could thus be provided only through curtailment of essential social services and

"Whereas the ever-increasing drain on the incomes of our people due to war demands, makes it increasingly difficult for them to meet the provincial debt charges even at the present rates and

Therefore, be it resolved, that this caucus goes on record as being opposed to the principle of any upward adjustment of interest rates on any refunding plan which may be undertaken by the government.

PRESENT RATE STANDS
The caucus of the caucus and its decision in the government means that Alberta is not prepared to pay more than the current rate of interest on its debt, and that the stand taken in fighting for lower interest rates and reduced debt charges, will be maintained.

Negotiations for the refunding of the Alberta public debt of about $147,000,000 commenced last month when a joint committee

German pressure.

The Japanese crisis took precedence on front pages of newspapers, and it was generally connected with the Japanese crisis in the Pacific.

Referring to the house having voted to arm American merchant vessels, the Times said:

"American opinion, which for some time in the past has been leading to following congress, is progressively awakening to the urgency for more direct measure of assistance to those engaged in the common struggle. There is no reason to suspect that congress will show any less awareness of the urgency of the need of the hour repeated once more within the last 24 hours than it did when it voted to arm an enemy submarine on an American destroyer."

"The fact is that if the Japanese move were not at once checked by American action, Germany would be enabled to gain the North China coast."

IRON POLICY USED BY SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Three senators demanded today that the United States adopt a hard policy toward Japan in what they viewed as an explosive situation in the Far East.

Senators George Norris (Ist-Dem.), Claude Pepper (Dem.-Florida), and Guy Gillette (Rep.-Iowa) outlined their views on the floor of the Senate.

Mr. Norris said that the United States should not be "a mere bystander" in the Pacific, and that it should take a "strong feeling of friendship and appreciation for the British cause" in the war.

The treaty constitutes the first formal diplomatic agreement between Canada and Brazil.

"If you have no faith in the government then charge it as quickly as possible, but have faith in parliament," he declared.

U.S. ACCEPTANCE

President Roosevelt's declaration at Quebec in 1943 had been the answer to the question "Am I my brother's keeper?" Mr. King said.

The President's acceptance of the declaration and those of his cabinet had further acceptance of that responsibility.

"Today the world has become a village in all its aspects. The issue is so clear as between freedom and slavery that we all must realize we are all brothers, all dependent upon each other."

Mr. King was one of a long list of speakers which included Hon. Charles Dunning, Chancellor of Queen's; Navy Minister Macdonald, who represents Kingston in parliament; Dean Ferguson of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass.; Premier Duff-Sutherland of Dalhousie University, Halifax; and Hon. DOCUMENTS SHOW DISTURBING UNREST

Smoldering Resentment Of Norwegians Is Revealed

Passive Resistance Is Cause Of Nerve Strain For Nazidom Officials

MONTREAL, Oct. 18.—(BUP)—The smoldering resentment of the Norwegian people under the heel of Nazi tyranny and Gestapo terrorism is vividly reflected in the pages of military documents seized in the famous Lofoten raid, and now released for the first time by the Norwegian government.

It was on March 4 of this year that a joint British-Norwegian expeditionary force landed establishing descent on the Lofoten Islands, off the northwest coast of Norway.

With devastating thoroughness, the Allies left herring-gull plumes and fuel stores in flames, sank 18,000 tons of Nazi-controlled shipping and triumphantly brought back 300 Norwegian volunteers to Norway.

EXCLUSIVE

Join the free forces of their countrymen. Over 200 Germans and Norwegian traitors were also taken to British internment camps.

The German documents clearly reveal how the Norwegian people have adopted a system of passive resistance which has become increasingly disquieting to the nerves of Nazi officials and their traitorous henchmen. Even more striking is the frank avowal, by Von Falkenhorst, the German commander-in-chief, of widespread active opposition and a general stiffening in Norway's attitude towards their conquerors.

Perhaps the most significant

Small Nations Failed To Heed Warning Of War

Failure of the democracies of Europe to grasp the magnitude of the German war preparations and to prepare themselves to meet it, and the isolationist policies of the small European democracies gave Hitler, the Beast of Berlin, his opportunity to devastate Europe. Senator Volie Bennet told an audience at the McDougall Church Friday evening.

Speaking under the auspices of the Canadian Club and the Women's Canadian Club and in aid of the Navy League of Canada the Czechoslovakian senator, a brother of Edward Bennet, president of the republic, in rising tones predicted the resurrection of his country as a free democracy under the inspired leadership of Winston Churchill.

Under his leadership with the aid of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and the United States all Europe will be liberated; the Beast of Berlin will be subjugated to the moral laws of democracy and peace in our time established.

STRUGGLES OF PEOPLE

Senator Bennet, in graphic sentences, outlined the history of his country, its struggles for independence, and achieving of that independence through the aid of Britain, France and America at the conclusion of the last war.

He told of the efforts of the Czechoslovakian people to create a happy and prosperous people following the gaining of its independence. He told of the establishing of free institutions, a free parliament, a free press and the freedom of speech.

Throughout the land the German influences were removed from the schools and great universities were fostered, as it was recognized that a small nation must have spiritual and educational resources to give them the disciplined democracy which alone can create a nation.

SPIRIT OF LIBERTY

He referred to the social service legislation introduced to meet the advancing tide of Communism in Central Europe. This included the establishment of a system of old age pensions, land settlement and housing schemes to provide homes for the poor and middle-class workers.

These policies, he stated, had resulted in the resurrection of the spirit of liberty in the people, and when the test came in 1938 they were prepared to die for their country.

He said the European democracies could not be accused of selling Czechoslovakia "down the river" then. They were not prepared, they had not foreseen the preparations made by Germany for war, they had been blind or blinded by the march of Germany's war preparations.

NATIONS UNPREPARED

Isolationism is not an American invention. Senator Bennet told his audience. It was practiced by the small nations of Europe in their undoing. But under the guidance of Churchill, with the aid of Canada, the United States and the other nations of the British Commonwealth these small nations will be again liberated from the cruel domination of the "Beast of Berlin."

Senator Bennet told of the sufferings his fellow countrymen were being subjected to by the German Gestapo. The activities of the Czech rose appears to be the subject of the Germans. Thousands of them have been murdered, and every effort is being made to re-germanize the nation through the schools and universities. Czech schools have been closed, and the universities are to be replaced by German institutions.

to wonder what conditions are like now, if by German admission open resistance had flared in Norway over twelve months ago.

A report on the political situation from the military commander in Norway, is contained in the first document, dated Oslo, Sept. 28, 1940. In it is a bitter complaint that except for the National Samling (Quilting party), no cooperation had been obtained from any of the other parties or even from the executive council.

"All other organizations and parties, and particularly the representatives of commerce, remain now, as before, pro-English, and consequently anti-German," the report states.

Although Quilting was the official puppet-dictator of Norway several months ago, the Nazis gradually pushed him out of the picture, and replaced him with Joseph Terboven, the report points out.

"and he is assisted by the Reichskommissariat, divided into administration, national economy and propaganda." Then come, according to the document, the senior chief of the SS and the police of the north, the commanders of the civil police, the security police (Gestapo), the SD and the armed SS.

GESTAPO SUPREME

This, of course, is in addition to an estimated 30,000 occupation troops, but the documents reveal pretty clearly where the real authority rests. "The German security police (Gestapo) is responsible for German police measures under the direction of the Reichskommissar. Independent action on the part of the police is only to be envisaged at the request of the G.S.P. or in the event the G.S.P. cannot be summoned."

Although Von Falkenhorst ordered every precaution to be taken to avoid trouble, the documents show that his orders were clear-cut when it came to dealing with demonstrations against "the occupying power and the Fuehrer." In such cases, the German commander ordered, action was to be ruthless and measures most severe.

In a separate document, rigid instructions were given the Norwegian press not to suppress announcements of German foreign policy. Editors were ordered to publish German and Italian communications fully, and wherever possible, on the front page.

More power to Empire flying fighters — from a Canadian-built Refuelling Tender. Ford of Canada is the largest single source of military vehicles for the British Empire.

More Power to the Air Force

PLENTY of accurate, split-second "ground work" is needed to keep pilots, gunners and observation men in the air night and day—as the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan steadily builds toward air supremacy. Rapid progress has been made in this mighty project, now well ahead of its ambitious schedule.

The Canadian-built Refuelling Tender (shown above) is an example of the streamlined equipment which enables Empire ground crews to reduce stopovers to a matter of minutes—helping to pile up precious flying hours for Empire war birds. Loaded to the hose-tips with 1000 gallons of high-test aviation fuel, these six-wheeled "service stations" speed out to meet the war-planes as they roar to earth; fill up a bomber almost as quickly as an attendant can service your personal car.

The Refuelling Tender is one of more than twenty different types of military vehicles—some completely Ford-equipped, some installed on Ford-built chassis—which are being turned out in thousands by Ford of Canada workers. More than 100,000 Ford military vehicles have been produced up to the present. At Ford's Windsor, Ontario, plant 13,000 employees are going "all out" to provide tools for the men who will use them.

Misfortunes Recalled

When Estate Is Sold

By ALEX JANUSITIS

VANCOUVER, Oct. 18.—(BUP)—British Columbia is about to lose another of its favorite holiday sites—a virtual "paradise in the wilds" that grew out of the heart-breaking misfortunes of a pioneering family and on the bones of at least one man.

The Whitworth estate, known as the "Hard Luck Ranch," nestled in the valley 40 miles from here, has been purchased by the city of Seattle, and soon will be converted into a giant lake—a victim of the march of progress and the demand for electrical energy.

A power company has built a dam, known as the Diablo Dam, across the Skagit river five miles south of the ranch, and when it goes into operation the waters will flood the entire valley, inundating the ranch house, barn, pastures and fishing streams through which the happy voices of fishermen and holiday-makers have echoed for years.

The Whitworth family built the ranch about 35 years ago, when there was talk the British Columbia government planned to build a road up Silver Creek and through the ranch to Princeton. The plan, however, never materialized and the road was built on a different route.

Whitworth spent years developing the ranch, bringing in all supplies, including a portable sawmill, by packhorse. He built a 10-room house, out buildings, a fine furniture from lumber, cleared the land, and brought in dairy and beef cattle, horses, pigs and chickens.

The hard luck struck the family and one by one they took sick and had to be taken out on horseback and on sled. Whitworth left a caretaker in charge, but eventually during the winter he and the livestock perished from hunger in the barn.

The Whitworth never went back to the ranch to live.

For years, the estate was trodden, used only by passing trappers.

Gas Stations In "Hoping"

CALGARY, Oct. 18.—(CP)—With the month only slightly more than half gone, at least one Calgary filling station is out of gas and another will be out before Saturday noon. While a large number think they will be all right, the majority of owners are just "hoping for the best" but are, in no immediate trouble.

In Virginia

WARRENTON, Va., Oct. 18.—(AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor arrived Friday for a week-end stay at "Oakwood," the estate of Captain and Mrs. Sterling Lathrop. It was said the couple would be visited by some of the Duke's intimate friends in the Northern Virginia area during their stay.

General's Death

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(CP)—Major General Sir Stanley Brenton Von Donop, holder of the honorary title of colonel commandant of the Royal Artillery since 1925, died Friday at Bath, he was 81.

Now the city of Seattle has bought the ranch and the power company is completing plans to turn the valley into a man-made lake, ending its life as the centre for the hundreds of holiday-makers from Vancouver and other parts of the province who came every year to tramp the surrounding countryside and mountains, fish the streams, and hunt the deer forest.

MISS EDITH CURRY

Canadians Give Helping Hand To English Woman In Distress

Miss Edith Curry was safe in a public shelter when a bomb came crashing down upon the rooming house in New Cavendish Street, London, W.I., in which she lived in a small room. Sixty-three years of age, she lives on a pension of less than five dollars a week, which the supplementary by doing dress-making. Coming out of the shelter on the morning after the raid, she found that the rooming house had been completely destroyed, and she was left with nothing but the clothes she was wearing and the few bedclothes she had taken into the shelter.

Miss Curry was given some help by the Government Assistance Board of her borough, but, although the Government aid was sufficient for her to buy a few pieces of furniture for the new living quarters with which she was provided and some new clothes, she was unable to replace her most valued possession—her sewing machine.

NEW MACHINE

But then the Lord Mayor's National Air Raid Distress Fund stepped in and made sure that she would not be without the means of supplementing her meagre pension. From money donated to the Queen's Canadian Fund, a brand new machine was bought for Miss Curry, and here she is seen working at it.

When a representative of the Queen's Canadian Fund called on Miss Curry the new machine had just been moved in and she made no attempt to conceal her pride of possession. "I don't know what I'd have done without a machine," she said. "Say thank you to your kind Canadian for me, will you, please."

German Strategy Fight On One Front At Time: Rear Peril Eliminated

CAIRO, Oct. 18.—(CDN)—At a time when the problem of opening up a second front to relieve German pressure on Russia appears to be as acute as it ever can be, it may be worthwhile to check over the various possibilities which Africa and the Mediterranean basin have to offer.

Your correspondent does not attempt herein to reflect any ideas that the British high command in the Middle East may have. He has no inside dope, no talking of what might be in the minds of the powers that be. He has

EXCLUSIVE

Just been staring at the map. And smaller strategists are welcome to do likewise.

To date the Germans have successfully avoided having to fight on two fronts simultaneously. When they attacked the Low Countries and France, they no longer had an Eastern front to contend with. When they turned around and attacked in the Balkans, there was no longer a Western front. When they turned on Russia, there was neither a Western front nor a Balkan front to worry about—and there still isn't, and the Germans are throwing the bulk of their terrific weight in what they hope will be the final successful effort to reduce the Eastern front to insignificance.

ONE AT A TIME

In the last war Germany fought on two fronts and lost. In this war Germany is fighting on one front at a time. . . . The following are conceivable second fronts which, in this correspondent's opinion, might be brought into being in the Middle East, Africa, or the Mediterranean Basin.

1.—The Caucasus and Turkey. To date Germany has abstained from forcing any issue with Turkey and thereby has avoided a second front there. Turkey is numerically serving the Germans' purpose by remaining a neutral barrier keeping the British in the Middle East away from the German flank. A front in the Caucasus depends upon the German advance. In this connection a re-examination of Turkey's position in the war will be vital one way or the other. So far none of the belligerents are forcing the issue.

2.—The western desert. Here two powerful armies are confronting each other. In Libya the Axis is stronger than it has ever been. The Italians are backed by Germany. German equipment and tanks. Recently the Germans are being more enterprising on the frontier as well as at Tobruk, possibly to make a show of strength with the purpose of preventing the British in the Middle East from pushing much aid to Russia. So far the western desert has been a relatively quiet and stable front which will not develop into a second front important enough to affect the course of events in Russia unless what happens, if it does happen, is on a really big scale.

INVASION OF ITALY

3.—Sicily and Italy. Is a British invasion of Sicily and Italy possible and feasible? The Italians reported by fear something of the sort and are fortifying the beaches in the south. The Germans reportedly fear the possibility of a second front on the peninsula and with the conviction of the Italian themselves are increasing their Gessap grip on the country.

4.—Spain. Spanish Morocco, the Balearics and the Canary Islands. The Spanish peninsula at the farthest corner of Europe from where the bulk of Germany's armies are engaged at the edge of Asia should be tempting a very desirable second front. Franco-Spain is pro-Axis. The Spanish people are not. According to persons who have been there recently, Spain is ready for a revolution any time if it comes from the outside as well as from the inside.

The Spanish war might be re-enacted in reverse with the Allies following the type of "masterstroke" for which Germany and Italy set the precedent. Gen. Francisco Franco came to power thanks to German and Italian active support and British, French and American passivity. Today Franco's position is not as secure as it was when the Spanish war ended. The Spaniards have been alerted more than any other European country and would rather be fed. Franco's military strength rested on Italian and German support. But today Mussolini is not as secure in Italy. Italian armaments might be as formidable in war as in peace, and the German war machine is almost totally engaged in Russia and Libya.

WOULD NOT BE EASY

If the Allies threatened to establish a strong foothold on the Iberian Peninsula, the Germans might have to quickly transfer some of their armored divisions to this new second front at the other end of Europe—and this would not be easy. In the Spanish war the Germans and Italians used the Balearics as air bases against Loyalist Spain. The Balearics in the hands of the Allies would serve the same purpose against Italy.

A possibly Spain might have a beneficial effect on France. A possibly Spanish Morocco might have a beneficial effect on French North Africa. At least it would not be easy for the British in Gibraltar and the western Mediterranean to get a higher level of control the Mediterranean between Gibraltar and

Importance Of Job Insurance Book Stressed

Many employers fail to realize the value of their Unemployment Insurance Commission books, William Carroll, manager of the Edmonton office of the commission, stated here Friday. Carroll has been reported to have found where books have been found lying on the street and he pointed out that an insurance book is an employer's most conclusive evidence of contributions on the basis of which benefit payments will be made.

While the employer is working the care of his insurance book is in the hands of his employer, and Mr. Carroll. It is the employer's duty to affix stamps indicating the amount of contribution made and to cancel these stamps with his number. During the time the employee continues working for the same person the insurance book remains in the possession of the employer.

Care should be taken that the books are not destroyed, defaced or lost.

Immediately on losing employment, the employee must obtain his book and see that the proper stamps have been affixed. He must have it if he registers at the local employment and claims office for employment. When he becomes eligible for the benefits the worker cannot establish his qualification if he has no book.

Bonus Proposal Now Rejected

The Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., has been advised that the Dominion pensions headquarters will not supplement the regular pension cheque with a cost-of-living bonus. Letter in reply to this request was sent to the members at their regular monthly meeting last Thursday. The request for the bonus was forwarded to Ottawa by the Legion, using the argument that such a bonus was implemented during the last war. In reply, the letter stated that a bonus at that time was justified because the cost of living then was much higher than it is now.

R. W. McLaren, president, announced that further demands for opening a road from Jasper avenue south to the Memorial hall and the library will be made to the city council. Mr. McLaren felt that requests should be placed before the council and also before the candidates during the forthcoming election campaign.

Malta and protect convoys against enemy bombers. A group of Channel Islands where, as early as during the Spanish war, the Germans were reported to be constructing a submarine base, would be advantageous in the Battle of the Atlantic and as air bases.

Plentiful weather conditions in the Mediterranean basin and North Africa favor the conduct of military operations in winter time. But the British strong enough to plunge into the hazardous business of opening up a second front. During the last war the Germans fought two front simultaneously—and lost. In this war the Germans are still fighting on only one front.

"Tommies" In Iceland Reviewed By U.S. General . . . Moscow Among Most Modern Of Cities

As U.S. commander, Major-General Bonesteel, centre, looks on a group of British soldiers march past him in review after the entire garrison of American troops landed at Reykjavik, Iceland, recently. U.S. soldiers, sailors and marines are now stationed at this strategic island in the northern Atlantic, in defence of the western hemisphere. Some of the newly arrived American soldiers are shown, left, warming chilled hands after their arrival on the island.

$12,000,000 Fire Hits Rubber Reserve

Fire, long uncontrollable, though fought by firemen from 60 nearby communities, swept the Fall River, Mass., plant of the Firestone Rubber and Latex Company, destroyed six buildings, including a six-storey warehouse containing 125,000 tons of raw rubber only recently brought from Liberia for the U.S. government's defence emergency rubber reserves. Photo above shows flames roaring hundreds of feet into the air as a building becomes a flaming torch, keeping firemen at a distance. Early estimates placed the fire damage, worst in the city's history, at over $12,000,000. The FBI is investigating cause.

Mink Goddess

Royal Eagle

Countess in the clouds is Marie Bobrinsky, recent graduate of a school for stewardesses. Descendant of Catherine the Great, daughter of Count Alexis Bobrinsky of Paris from whom she has had no word for a year, velvet-eyed Marie will brighten skies in the Pacific Northwest.

"Menace" Held

Pictured in a New York court after his arrest by federal agents is George Sylvester Viereck, propagandist, poet and journalist. He was arrested on charges of failing to set forth "divers facts" about his activities when registering as an agent of the Nazi government. In asking for high bail for Viereck, Atty-Gen. William P. Maloney said: "This man is one of the outstanding propagandists of the world and is one of the truly great menaces to this country's safety today. Viereck was ordered held in $20,000 bail.

Big Contingent Of Empire Airmen On Way To Canada

This happy group is part of a detachment of 589 fledgling fliers from Australia and New Zealand who disembarked at San Francisco from the Maibon liner Monterey en route to flying schools in Canada. Immediately after they disembarked they took a boat for Oakland, Calif., where they boarded special trains for Canada.

With Nazi forces approaching the city of Moscow, Russian troops are reported to be putting up a stiff resistance to the Nazi invader, and in some sectors to have slowed up the enemy advance. In recent years Moscow has been completely rebuilt and now ranks among the most modern cities of Europe and Asia. Two of the many modern apartments for workmen are shown, top. Okhotny Ryad or "Hunters' Row" is shown, centre. Until recently it was a shabby street in the centre of Moscow lined with ancient shops. The old section was razed and new buildings erected. On the left is the building of the Council of People's Commissars, and at the right is Hotel Moscow. Below is the Moscow river with its recently completed granite quay.

Across the flat lands before Moscow tanks roar up to meet the oncoming Nazis. Inside Moscow giant posters exhort the populace to defend the Soviet capital to death, to cling to it as Leningrad's beleaguered defenders have clung to their city. Picture, radioed from Moscow, shows tanks taken from reserve stocks moving into the climactic battle.

Britain is turning the tables on the Nazis by keeping them, and the rest of the world, wondering whether she will strike in the west to lure German troops from the Russian front, use her air superiority in the north to invade Norway, or attack in Italy to bolster spirit of revolt among peoples of occupied Europe. Map shows points where British troops may invade the continent of Europe.
